Subject: Re: Bill to give Children Choice on Dissection

When I was in high school some sixty years ago I was ORDERED to dissect a frog by my biology teacher.
I refused and was given an F for the term although I was an excellent student in the class. I have never forgotten this incident. I think dissection of anything should not be offered in the classroom. If a student wishes to pursue a career in research or medicine then he can study whatever is necessary in college. There are modern simulators for this purpose but the board of education along with many university laboratories do not avail themselves of them. Thank you. Anne Voloshin AV106@aol.com..
